ROSE BOWL: THE 30TH YEAR

The 2011 season marked UCLA's 30th year in the Rose Bowl. The Bruins moved from the L.A. Coliseum in the summer of 1982 and went 6-0-1 in that first year, capping the season with a victory over Michigan in the Rose Bowl game.

The 2006 season-opening win against Utah was UCLA's 100th at the Rose Bowl. The Bruins own a record of 124-56-2 since moving to Pasadena, including a 3-2 record in Rose Bowl games.

In July of 2007, the Rose Bowl was selected the No. 1 sports venue by SI.com/SIonCampus.

ROSE BOWL RENOVATION

The Rose Bowl is currently undergoing a $152 million renovation that is scheduled to be completed prior to the 2013 season. Phase I of the project is well underway. Included in these changes are a new, state-of-the-art LED video board measuring 30 feet tall by 78 feet long on the north end of the stadium. There is a new clock on the south end, reminiscent of the historical Rose Bowl clock of the 1950s and `60s and a new, smaller scoreboard installed on the east end of the stadium. In addition, a great deal of work has been done on the west side of the stadium around the press box area. Structures and land have been cleared for the pouring of footings for the new press box.

LAST GAME — Eighth-ranked North Division Champ Oregon topped South Division Champion UCLA in the first annual Pac-12 Championship contest, in Eugene, OR, by a score of 49-31. First-half Bruin fumbles led to three Duck touchdowns resulting from a short field, the longest UO scoring drive covering 52 yards in length. Patrick Larimore helped get UCLA on the scoreboard with a 35-yard interception return which had evened the score at 7-all. After the Ducks moved out to a 21-7 lead, quarterback Kevin Prince connected with Nelson Rosario on a 37-yard scoring play to bring the Bruins within a touchdown. Oregon came right back with a couple of scoring drives before Tyler Gonzalez booted a career-best 44-yard field goal on the last play of the first half to make it 35-17, Oregon, at the break. UCLA forced an Oregon punt on the first drive after the break and opened up the second half scoring on a short run by Prince which capped off a 43-yard drive and narrowed the gap to 35-24. However, Oregon scored on its next two possessions. UCLA finished off the night's scoring on a 19-yard touchdown pass from Prince to Rosario which capped off a 15-play, 94 yard drive. Rosario had six catches in the contest for 98 yards and the first multiple touchdown catch game of his career.

During the last 29 years (including 2010), UCLA has been ranked in the final Associated Press Top 25 on 12 occasions, second only to USC (16) among Pac-10 schools. Washington is next with 10 rankings.

The selection of tight end Marcedes Lewis by the Jacksonville Jaguars in the first round of the 2006 NFL draft marked the 29th time a UCLA player has been taken in round one.

Quarterback Drew Olson finished eighth in the 2005 Heisman Trophy balloting. It marked the 21st time that a Bruin has finished in the top 10 of the Heisman Trophy voting.

UCLA has had at least one former player participate in 28 of the last 31 Super Bowl games.

The only three-time consensus All-Americans in Pac-10 history are Bruins (LB Jerry Robinson and S Kenny Easley).

In the decade of the 2000's, UCLA had 12 finalists / winners of the National player awards --- 2009 Kai Forbath - Groza Award winner; 2005 Marcedes Lewis-Mackey Award winner; 2004 M. Lewis, Mackey finalist; 2002 Mike Seidman-Mackey finalist; 2004 Chris Kluwe-Ray Guy Award finalist; 2003 Dave Ball-Bronco Nagurski Award finalist; 2001 Robert Thomas-Dick Butkus Award finalist; 2000 Freddie Mitchell-Fred Biletnikoff Award finalist; 2003 D. THE OFFENSE

OFFENSIVE LINE — Redshirt senior MIKE HARRIS (#65) has started at tackle in the first 13 contests in 2011. He started 10 games at right tackle in 2010 and has 41 career starts under his belt, most on the team.

Redshirt senior KAI MAIAVA (#51) --- was on the watch list for the Rimington Award (most outstanding center) --- sat out the 2010 season due to injury. He started at center in the 2011 opener at Houston, but missed the San Jose State game due to a violation of team rules. He returned to the lineup against Texas. He also started at Oregon State, at Stanford, versus Washington State, at Arizona, Cal, against Arizona State, at Utah, versus Colorado, at USC, at Oregon. Maiava fractured his ankle in a scrimmage on Aug. 21, 2010 and was forced out of the lineup. Maiava started at center for the Bruins in the first 12 games in the 2009 season.

Redshirt junior JEFF BACA (#60) returned to the field for 2011 spring practice after sitting out the 2010 season due to NCAA eligibility issues. However, he suffered a fractured ankle in the spring. Baca returned to game action for the first time since 2009, playing tackle against San Jose State. He has started at tackle against Texas, at Oregon State, at Stanford, WSU, at Arizona, Cal, ASU, at Utah, versus Colorado, at USC, at Oregon. Baca started at left guard in all 13 games in 2009 and has 32 career starts. In 2008, he appeared in nine games with eight starts at left tackle.

Redshirt sophomore guard GREG CAPELLA (#64) has started the first 13 games of 2011. He lined up at guard at Oregon, at USC, versus Colorado, at Utah, against ASU, Cal, at Arizona, against WSU, at Stanford, at Oregon State and versus Texas, started at center for Kai Maiava against San Jose State, and made his first career start in the 2011 opener at Houston, playing guard. He made his college debut a year ago at Texas.

Redshirt sophomore guard ALBERTO CID (#62) transferred into UCLA this fall from Citrus College and has started games against San Jose State, Washington State, at Arizona, versus Colorado, at USC, at Oregon.

Redshirt freshman guard WADE YANDALL (#71) has started three games. He started his first career game against Cal as the Bruins rushed for a season-high 294 yards. He started against Arizona State and the Bruins had 220 on the ground. He also drew the starting assignment at Utah.

True sophomore guard CHRIS WARD (#75) is out after undergoing left knee surgery on Dec. 13. He started at guard in the first two games of the season and again at Oregon State and at Stanford. He came off the bench at Arizona and against Texas. He made his first start in the 2011 opener at Houston and was in on all snaps. Ward made his debut in the fourth quarter of the 2010 win at Texas, taking over at right guard. He played in three games last season, including most of the second half against USC.

QUARTERBACKS — Redshirt junior KEVIN PRINCE (#4) has started the last seven games and a total of 25 for his career. He has 455 yards rushing this season which is the most by a Bruin quarterback since Jeff Dankworth racked up 815 in the 1976 season.

He is eighth on the all-time career total offense list at UCLA. He ranks 67th in the nation in total offense (208.20/g) and 49th in passing efficiency (137.27).

Prince made his 25th career start at Oregon in the Pac-12 Championship contest and completed 13 of 26 passes for 164 yards and two touchdowns. He also ran 15 times for 31 yards. Prince completed 21 of 33 passes for 261 yards at USC. He rushed for 34 yards on 17 carries. Against Colorado and completed 15 of 19 passes for 225 yards and four touchdowns while running 10 times for 84 yards. It was his first 300-yard total offense game since a 390-yard effort against Washington State in the 2009 season. The four scoring passes were a personal best total and the most by a Bruin quarterback since Ben Olson connected on five touchdown aerials against Stanford in 2007.

Prince started at Utah and passed for 146 yards (two interceptions) and ran for 10. Against Arizona State, he passed for 196 yards and ran for 61 more. He hooked up with Nelson Rosario on his longest career pass, a 76-yard play. Against Cal, he ran for 163 yards and threw for 92 more yards. The 163 yards rushing marked the first time a Bruin quarterback had rushed for at least 100 yards in a game since Jeff Dankworth in 1976. It was the most rushing yardage by a quarterback since John Sciarra totaled 178 versus Tennessee in 1974. Prince's 92 throwing yards helped to push him over the 3,000-yard mark for his career.

At Arizona, Prince threw for 286 yards and a touchdown. He was the team's leading rusher with 13 yards. He came off the bench to replace an injured Richard Brehaut in the second quarter of the Washington State game and helped lead the team to a 28-25 win. Prince completed eight of 13 passes for 173 yards and a couple of fourth quarter scoring passes (Josh Smith nine yards, Shaq Evans seven yards). The toss to Evans came at the 3:26 mark and put UCLA into the lead at 28-25.

Prince had not seen action in the first two conference games of the season. Against Texas, he threw for 26 yards (three interceptions) and ran for 26 more. He did not see action vs. San Jose State. In the 2011 season-opener at Houston, he completed his first three throws before being forced to the sidelines in the second quarter due to a concussion suffered following a rushing attempt.

Prince appeared in five games in 2010, all starts. He was sidelined for the balance of the season after undergoing arthroscopic surgery on his knee on Oct. 23. Prince started and played every snap in last year's opener at Kansas State despite missing the bulk of pre-season camp with a muscle strain (oblique). Against Houston, he directed five scoring drives (four tds, one fg). He was the team's second-leading rusher (60). At Texas, he ran for 50 net yards and threw a one-yard scoring pass to Ricky Marvray. Prince's knee was sore and swollen the week following the Texas game and he did not see action versus WSU. He returned to the lineup at Cal. He did not play at Oregon due to the injury and decided to undergo knee surgery.

In 2009, Prince started all 11 games in which he played. He became just the second Bruin freshman (redshirt) quarterback to open a season under center, and the first to win a season-opener, when he took the first snap in the San Diego State game. He became the second freshman quarterback in UCLA history to pass for over 300 yards three times in a season (Tommy Maddox, 1990). He was third on the team in rushing (165) and his 2,229 yards of total offense rank No. 14 on UCLA's single-season list (No. 2 freshman behind Maddox), his 179 completions rank T-No. 11 (No. 2 among freshmen) and his 2,050 passing yards rank No. 18 (No. 2 among freshmen).

In 2009 at Oregon State, he passed for a career-high 323 yards and rallied the Bruins from a 19-3 deficit to tie the game at 19-all. He threw scoring passes of 58 yards to Nelson Rosario (8:06) and seven yards to Taylor Embree, on fourth-and-seven, with 2:06 remaining. In the final quarter, he completed nine of 13 passes for 198 yards and the two touchdowns. In the first half against Washington, he completed 13 of 17 passes for 212 yards with one touchdown. However, with 5:07 remaining in the half, he was injured on a helmet-to-helmet hit at the end of an eight-yard run and did not return. At Washington State, he recorded his third 300-yard passing game. He completed a career-high 27 passes and led the Bruins in rushing (76), including a 68-yard touchdown scamper, the longest run by a Bruin quarterback since John Sciarra had a 71-yard non-scoring run against Tennessee in 1971. His 390 yards total offense rank No. 9 (tied) on the single-game total offense list.

True junior RICHARD BREHAUT (#12) came on briefly for Kevin Prince in the Conference Championship game at Oregon and completed one of two passing attempts for 13 yards. He also suffered his first interception of the season (last int. came in 2010 v. USC and it snapped a streak of 141 passing attempts without a pick). He worked his way back into practice during the Colorado week after recovering from a broken leg suffered in the Washington State game (10/8/11).

He made his 11th career start, the fourth of this season, in the win over Washington State. He threw for 28 yards and ran for 11 yards before leaving the game in the second quarter with a fractured lower left leg. At Stanford, he threw for 202 yards and a pair of touchdowns (Joseph Fauria 13, 12 yds). At Oregon State, he totaled 146 passing yards, including a 62-yard aerial to Josh Smith and a 22-yard scoring toss to Taylor Embree, and rushed for a touchdown. He came on in relief of Kevin Prince against Texas and threw for 150 yards while completing 8-19 attempts. In the start against San Jose State, Brehaut threw for 145 yards (12-23 att) and a touchdown (Fauria 14 yds) and ran for 44 yards. He came off the bench in the second quarter at Houston and threw for 264 yards and rushed for 87. He threw two touchdown passes, completing 17 of 26 tosses and ran for one score.

Brehaut appeared in nine games, with seven starts, in 2010. He started the final six games of the season. On the year, Brehaut ranked ninth in the Pac-10 in passing yards (144.00) and passing efficiency (110.22) and 10th in total offense (150.78). Brehaut made his first career start versus Washington State and completed 12 of 23 passes for 128 yards. On the day, he engineered seven scoring drives - five tds and two fgs. He also scored the go-ahead touchdown on a one-yard run.

Against Arizona, he threw for his first two career touchdown passes. His 68-yard scoring toss to Randall Carroll was the team's longest since Ben Olson and Brandon Breazell hooked up on a 69-yard scoring play versus Oregon State in 2007. Brehaut also connected on a 49-yard touchdown pass with Josh Smith on a flea-flicker play.

Brehaut led a last-second game-winning field goal drive against Oregon State. UCLA started its final possession on its own 17-yard line with 48 seconds remaining and he moved the Bruins 49 yards, setting up Kai Forbath's game-winning kick. He completed four of six passes (37 yards) on that drive.

At Arizona State, he set school records with his 33 pass completions (old record, 32 by Troy Aikman v. USC in 1988) and 56 pass attempts (old record, 51 by Dennis Dummit v. Cal in 1970). He also set personal bests with 321 passing yards and three touchdown passes.

Game 5 - UCLA 19, Stanford 45
October 1, 2011 at Stanford, CA

Game Notes - No. 6/4-ranked Stanford bested the Bruins 45-19 on the Farm. UCLA took the opening kickoff and marched 79 yards on 13 plays but could not find the end zone on four rushing attempts from the four-yard line. Stanford took over on the one-yard line and went 99 yards on 16 plays to take the lead and was never headed. Stanford took advantage of a Richard Brehaut fumble to extend the lead to 14-0 early in the second quarter. After a UCLA three-and-out, Stanford added a field goal for a 17-0 advantage. Brehaut then led the Bruins on a nine-play, 80-yard drive which culminated on a 12-yard scoring toss to tight end Joseph Fauria just before the end of the first half. Stanford needed just two plays after taking the second-half kickoff to get that seven points back and go ahead 24-7. Brehaut then found Fauria again for a 13-yard touchdown play. Stanford scored a late third quarter touchdown to go ahead 31-13. Josh Smith then ran it in from seven yards out to narrow the margin to 31-20 early in the fourth quarter. Stanford answered with two more scoring drives to close out the contest. Johnathan Franklin ran 12 times for 96 yards against the nation's top-ranked rush defense entering the game. Patrick Larimore led Bruin tacklers with 11 stops.

Prince connected with Nelson Rosario on a 21-yard strike which helped key a scoring drive on UCLA's initial possession of the second half which staked the Bruins to a 14-9 lead. WSU answered with a six-play, 61-yard scoring drive to regain the lead, at 16-14, which held up entering the fourth quarter. The Cougars then went up 22-14 on a scoring pass with 12:17 to play. Five Yards at a Time

For one standout UCLA running back, the challenge on the field goes far beyond keeping his hands on the ball and his eyes on the goal by MIKE TRUDELL / photographs by HENRY LEUTWYLER

Train right fat!"

The play is called. Derrick Coleman Jr. knows he's about to get the football and is mandated to slam his body into any number of 11 defenders. He lines up behind the quarterback and notices the defense shifting its formation, meaning his QB is likely to call an audible—change the play at the line of scrimmage—and initiate a new set of follow-throughs.

The QB screams out a passing play, the ears of his offensive line trained like those of a dog awaiting further command, while the legs of the receivers are set to burst off the line at the revised snap-count signal. Coleman, now required to block a pass rusher, knows exactly what to do, even though he can't hear his QB's words.

Derrick Coleman is deaf.

His parents, Derrick Coleman and May Manning, first realized their son couldn't hear when he was around two. His speech hadn't developed normally, and speaking to him continually failed to elicit a response. Diagnostic visits ensued. But what didn't take long was the emphatic decision that Derrick Jr.'s disability would never affect how he felt about himself. "We never saw it as an excuse," says Manning, a registered nurse, of her son, who is virtually 100 percent deaf without hearing aids. "He's just Derrick. We treated him as if there was no disability."

Not everyone followed suit, however. Wearing a high-tech hearing aid at his Fullerton elementary school, Coleman could hear the other kids calling him stupid. And when he couldn't hear the taunts, he could read the lips of the students who mocked the devices protruding from his ears. He came home once with tears in his eyes after an incident with a fellow third grader. His mother had a simple solution: Compare your report card—the one full of A's—to that of the bully's, and see who measures up and who doesn't.

Chalk one up for the deaf kid. "At first it was a struggle," says Coleman, 20, now a year away from his college degree. “I used to never want to talk to people. But my parents told me that if anyone couldn’t accept me for who I was, I didn’t need to be around them.” He began to realize that his needing aids to hear was no different from someone needing glasses to see. “We all have a disability of some sort,” he recalls his mother telling him. “Some are just more profound than others.”

Still, challengers continued to haunt Coleman as he made his way through Fullerton’s Troy High School, where his Spanish teacher didn’t believe he’d be able to complete the listening-heavy class. You can’t do it weren’t words Derrick was willing to accept. He worked even harder to prove the teacher wrong, earned a B in the course and kept his bitterness stashed in his locker. “There are always doubters for everybody,” he says with a shrug. “I can’t exactly have a normal life if I let a hearing disability take over. When I don’t hear you, my personality comes in. I’m not afraid to ask, ‘Okay, what did you say again?’ ”

Provided his success continue in the classroom, his parents insisted, Coleman could turn to his true love: sports. He was a strapping natural athlete with an affinity for basketball and, especially, football. But was the gridiron too risky? Would his hearing aids be able to pick up the sounds of a rapidly approaching opponent slashing in for a tackle? Could he communicate with other players in the clutch? He knew of no hearing-disabled football players from which to draw confidence.

Coleman’s parents had few such questions—they needed only assurance from medical specialists that playing football could do no further damage. And once they had that, their son got to put on a uniform like the other kids. “Derrick was always very, very, very active,” says Manning. “He needed a sport to play—trust me. He’s always had this muscle structure you just don’t see in little kids, and it was in football that he excelled.”

But how to protect young Derrick’s hearing aids? “I put a pair of my pantyhose over them to keep them secure in his helmet,” says his mom with a hearty laugh. “I’d cut the legs and tie up the loose ends, and it would sit like a skull cap does now. And it worked.”

Improvised headwear in place, Coleman went on to become a three-year starter at Troy, running for 5,214 yards and 58 touchdowns. There wasn’t much left for doubters to say as Derrick sprinted toward team MVP and first-team all-league honors as a senior. So good was he scholarship offers from both UCLA and USC came for the six-one, 240 pounder before that senior campaign.

Is it possible that being deaf actually helped Coleman? “Right when you see him, you get the understanding that Derrick is a pure athlete,” says close friend and Troy High offensive lineman Derek McConnell, 21. “But when you get to know him, you realize his athleticism only got him so far. The reason that he was so good and continues to play at a high level is because of his hearing—because he had to work three times as hard as anybody else on the field.”

Coleman lifts weights like a man possessed. He runs extra sprints when others give in, volunteers for special-teams units. He refuses to relent. “He knew the disability would take him down with the slightest slip, so it’s all been about him constantly overcoming obstacles,” McConnell says. “If he weren’t deaf, I don’t think he’d be nearly as powerful —emotionally or physically.”

Coleman’s freshman year at UCLA brought a new group of people to win over. “The first day of training camp, I was [skeptical],” says running backs coach Wayne Moses. “But I was wrong. This is my fourth year with Derrick, and we have never had a communication problem.”

Coleman lifts weights like a man possessed. He runs sprints when others give in, volunteers for special-teams units. “If he weren’t deaf, I don’t think he’d be nearly as “I assumed it’d be so hard for Derrick to know the snap count and get the audibles,” says Brett Downey, a Bruins offensive line-man and Coleman’s former roommate. “But once I saw him play, I saw it wasn’t a problem.”

Because football teams use hand signals for every play, hearing is actually rarely an issue, particularly since it can’t be taken for granted in many deafening stadiums. Audibles, however, require a bit of extra attention. “If we’re talking with our backs to him, our QB needs to turn around and visually communicate with Derrick so he can get to the right place,” says UCLA head coach Rick Neuheisel. “You’d imagine it would be an arduous task, but Derrick is very bright. He knows his assignments cold, which makes it easy for us.”

In fact, Neuheisel and Moses can’t remember a single time during the games Coleman played in his first three years in which he failed to pick up an audible. As of press time, his career stats include 1,214 rushing yards and 12 touchdowns, with 168 rushing yards and four touchdowns in the first three games of this season.

“When we’re making huddle calls with crowd noise, Derrick reads our lips, and if he misses that, he'll grab our face mask and make us tell him," says QB Kevin Prince. "When you get grabbed from behind, you know he's not going out there without his assignment."

powerful, emotionally or physically."

Coleman's goal is the same whenever he touches the ball: Five yards at a time, a phrase he has displayed prominently in his locker and his car. Anything less in "unacceptable." It is how he's pushed through his life. "I've never seen De[redacted] about his hearing," says McConnell. "It all just pushes him more and more."

"It's one of those things you really admire," says Coach Neuheisel. "You see a kid that could easily have used this as a reason why not, but instead he finds reasons why. That's really what life is about. By him working the way he does and accomplishing so much, he's a ready-made role model."

Coleman has been known by his buddies to feign not hearing if you are making fun of him, but in actuality, he's the guy everyone likes. "He has a little prankster in him. He's the comedian in the room, and once he gets started, sometimes I have to reel him in a little," says Moses. "But players are crazy about him. He's a great kid."

No matter how busy things get during football season, it's paramount to Coleman that he speak to kids all over L.A., particularly those with a hearing impairment. His message: There are no boundaries, no walls you can't break through. He's become just as comfortable talking to young people as he is to his friends.

In July, Coleman, McConnell and two former Troy High players—center Josh Lee and tight end Brian Tucker—went for their annual rite of summer, a week-long trip to Lake Arrowhead. It's a boys' week designed to ensure the old friends have quality time together before Coleman leaves for training camp, to tell stories of football and girls, to reflect on favorite memories and make new ones.

At one point, the young men gathered in front of the lake. Coleman's mouth was, as usual, moving a mile a minute, prompting the threat that he would be tossed into the drink. Still, when Tucker delivered the critical shove, Coleman was shocked. "I'm not supposed to have my hearing aids in the water, but they just forgot that I wear them!" recalls Coleman, grinning from ear to ear.

"When you know him, you do just forget," says McConnell. "But when he realized the reason we pushed him in, he was really happy."

This is truly a piece worth reading since it not only allows someone with a disablility to gain confidence, but it also allows others to understand what goes through this fine student-athlete's mind and that if a person with a disability can presevere, one without such has no valid excuse for failure because with effort, success is guaranteed, as is the case in this gentlemen's life. Nice, keep it up Coleman, aka BASH!!

This is an amazing story. I myself am deaf and understood what he is going through in his entire life. My passion is baseball and the goal was to work hard and be able to communicate with the team at all times. It was hard work but prevailed. It was truly worth it.

UCLA's Johnathan Franklin is in it for the long run
Pictures

By Chris Foster
Sun Aug 14 2011 6:35 PM
UCLA's Johnathan Franklin is a 1,000-yard rusher who has aspirations that go far beyond any glory he might achieve on a football field.
As an athlete, he dreams of championships, sure, but his eyes are already focused on a different type of title:
Mayor of Los Angeles.
"I did an internship in the mayor's office last spring," says Franklin, a junior. "I got to shadow the mayor [Antonio Villaraigosa]. I sat down and talked with him. I got to understand how things work."
Or don't work.
"In my neighborhood, guys were living the stereotypes," the Dorsey High graduate continues. "They were gang-banging, doing drugs, going to jail or just plain dying. I feel God has a greater purpose for me than football."
Author, poet, actor — Franklin was all that and more before he ever enrolled at UCLA.
At 15 he wrote plays about hope, casting friends in roles and taping their performances. And at open-mike night at Da Poetry Lounge in Hollywood, he expressed his thoughts about God and society.
Franklin also worked one season on the reality television show "Baldwin Hills," noting how even that small dose of fame changed his environment.
"People at school who would never talk to me suddenly were going, 'Hey Johnathan, how you doing? Want to hang out?'" he says. "It helped me open up to people and understand their motives before you trust people."
Such observations come out in his poetry.
"It's no lovey-dovey poetry," Franklin says. "People are in a bubble where I grew up. I write about the revolution of change, people bettering themselves."
He practices what he preaches too, in terms of improvement. His UCLA football career is a prime example.
In 2008, his first season with the Bruins, he didn't play a single down in a game but won a team award at the end of the season acknowledging his hard work as a "scout player" during practice.
The next season, Franklin played in all 13 games, had eight starts, and produced with 566 yards rushing, including two 100-yard games.
Then, last season, the powerfully built 5-foot-10, 193-pound former sprinter had a breakout season, running for a team-high 1,127 yards, the most by a UCLA player since Skip Hicks rushed for 1,282 yards in 1997.
Franklin was also active behind the scenes. For example, there was the time he burst into the locker room the day after a 35-0 loss to Stanford, and — "using words you probably can't put in the newspaper," he says — loudly hustled players to the weight room 15 minutes early.
"Not everyone would have the courage to do that," wide receiver Jerry Johnson says. "He told us we had to stop messing around and make our families proud."
UCLA won its next three games.
"He's a leader," safety Tony Dye says.
Franklin's credibility comes from taking personal responsibility. After struggling with fumbles during the 2009 season, he began carrying a football around campus, daring teammates to knock it loose when he was walking to class.

"Everyone respects a guy who addresses a problem instead of ignoring it," UCLA Coach Rick Neuheisel says.
The same can be said of Franklin away from a football field.
Randall Carroll, a UCLA receiver, says he was headed to practice last week with Franklin when they came upon a homeless man.
Instead of ignoring the man, Franklin got out of the car and checked on him, offering encouragement.
"Johnathan does those things," Carroll says. "He says God tells him what to do and he does it."
Franklin's mother, Pamela Andrews, says that even as a high school star her son wasn't defined by what he accomplished on the football field.
Frustrated by people from his neighborhood who he perceived were "just giving up," he wrote about it and recruited friends to perform plays he directed and taped.
Franklin recalls one character as a girl "whose mother was a druggie and father wasn't around." She contemplates suicide, but "a guardian angel comes and tells her not to give up.
"She writes a letter of hope to herself."
Asked about her son's poetry, Andrews laughs and says, "He won't let me read it."
But she believes the themes are consistent: "He wants to come back and [help] the kids in his community."
Someday those goals might lead him toward a run for City Hall.
The internship was "a chance to be involved," Franklin says. He met the chief of police and the fire chief, and spoke with City Council members.
"To change your neighborhood, you have to change your image, change the label," Franklin says.
Says Andrews: "Did he tell you about his plans to be governor?"

Phase One Of Rose Bowl Stadium Major Renovations To Debut Saturday Three-year, $152 million project addresses public safety issues and provides modern amenities.

The Rose Bowl stadium

Sept. 8, 2011

Fans attending Saturday night's UCLA 2011 football home opener against San Jose State will be greeted by numerous changes to the Rose Bowl stadium, including a state-of-the-art video board at the north end of the edifice, a vintage scoreboard at the south end, widened tunnels and additional aisles. The alterations are part of Phase One of a three-year, $152 million major renovation of the stadium, the largest investment in the history of the 88-year-old iconic structure.

The renovation will improve public safety; enhance the fan experience; maintain the national historic landmark status of the Rose Bowl stadium; develop revenue sources to fund the project and other long-term improvements; and augment the stadium's facilities. The financing plan includes lease extensions that will ensure UCLA will play its home games at the Rose Bowl stadium through 2042 and the Rose Bowl Game will be played there through at least 2043.

"We are pleased with the renovation progress made to date and are delighted to be able to share the exciting changes with the UCLA community," said RBOC Board President Victor Gordo. "We look forward to phases two and three and the completion of the project to coincide with the 100th Rose Bowl Game in 2014."

"We have been following the progress of the renovation with great excitement," said UCLA Director of Athletics Dan Guerrero. "We know the upgrades will make for a more enjoyable experience for our students, alums and other UCLA fans."

The focus of the multimillion dollar, three-phase project is streamlining tunnel ingress/egress, improving concourse circulation, increasing the number of concession stands and restrooms, providing state-of-the-art premium seating products in a rebuilt press box, a new scoreboard and cutting-edge video board. The renovation also addresses key stadium infrastructure needs that will allow the facility to continue to operate for decades to come. Work began in January 2011 and will continue through August 2013. Primary funding for the renovations comes from bonds issued by the city of Pasadena.

Renovations will not affect the playing of UCLA football home games or Rose Bowl Games. Outside of the press box renovation, work on most other elements of the project is planned between football seasons.

No additional donations or ticket price increases will be required of UCLA patrons to fund the renovation.

Two campaigns affiliated with the stadium renovation are Legacy and Legends. A private philanthropic group, Legacy Connections, Inc., is conducting a campaign to raise funds for additional project elements to complete the renovation. Legacy Connections consists of business leaders who believe in the iconic, historic nature of the Rose Bowl stadium and want it improved and maintained at the highest level. Legends is conducting the premium seating campaign, which is new to the Rose Bowl stadium. Products being offered under the Legends heading include suites in the remodeled press box, club seats and loge boxes. The Legends marketing center with renderings to view the future of the stadium is located in Lot D at the Rose Bowl. Information on premium seating is available at 626-585-6800 or www.rosebowlstadium.com.

Project highlights:

Improved Entrance/Exiting Plan - When all the exiting improvements -- tunnel widening, adding aisles and seat access via the field -- are completed, the average exit time for the stadium will decrease from 40 minutes to 17.
Increased Concourse Capacity - Expanding space from 2.5 square feet per person to 4 square feet will provide more room for fans and easier access to and from seats and amenities.
Restroom Improvements - When completed, the number of restroom fixtures in the stadium will increase by 33 percent.
Increased Concessions - The number of concession areas will increase by 50 percent.
New Video Board - A new, state-of-the-art video board measures 78 feet by 30 feet, compared to the 26 feet by 28 feet old video board.
Historic Scoreboard - The renovation includes a reconstruction of the south scoreboard that recalls the 1940s vintage scoreboard.
Field Hedge - The stadium will reestablish the historic field hedge. This will become an integral element of the field-level stadium access, acting as the barrier between fans and the playing field and improving ingress/egress to the lower levels of the stadium.
Press Box Renovation - The press box will be substantially reconstructed to include a limited inventory of modern, state-of-the-art amenities such as luxury suites, loge boxes, club seats and lounge areas. The press box square footage will increase from approximately 8,800 square feet to 55,000 square feet. The renovation will provide an appealing area for fans to enjoy the game in comfort with friends and family and to entertain corporate partners/donors. The premium seating will be integrated into the press box and keep with the traditional feel of the entire renovation.
Capacity - When the renovation is completed, overall seating capacity is expected to be reduced by only 3,000 seats, from 92,500 to 88,500.

Following is the schedule for Rose Bowl renovations:

PHASE I (2011)

- New electrical service upgrade and utility loop backbone
- South tunnels and concrete deck repair/waterproofing
- South scoreboard and advertising panels
- North video board and advertising panels, including signature element
- East LED game information sign and advertising panel

PHASE II (2012)

- North tunnels 7A and 15A

No more pain, just gains for Joseph Fauria as he makes a strong comeback on the field

Joseph Fauria got to enjoy only the dregs of games last season: garbage time. And for someone so tall, that was a quite a small role to play.

He caught three balls in 2010. Two were for touchdowns, but meaningless ones – his first at Arizona State helped UCLA lose by three touchdowns instead of four, his last came in the finale against USC with 23 seconds left.

Combine that with a 2008 that saw him barely get off the bench as a freshman at Notre Dame and a 2009 that was lost because of a mandatory redshirt season after his transfer from the Fighting Irish to the Bruins, and the redshirt junior tight end was looking at three straight seasons without considerable playing time going into this fall.

“It was taxing on my will, and my drive,” he said. “It wasn’t easy. But I think in the long run, it made me a lot stronger.”

That put a damper on the perpetual happiness he normally exudes, but so far this year the 6-foot-8-inch Encino native is finally enjoying the success he had hoped for when he left Notre Dame to come back home, and he’s all smiles.

“I’m happier when I’m on the field helping my team,” Fauria said. “Once we win some more games, I’m going to be even happier.”

He quickly helped by making his tall, long and rangy presence felt in the season opener against Houston. For UCLA, moving the ball downfield was as easy as lobbing a ball up toward Fauria, who grabbed everything with the ease of a center boxing out guards for rebounds on the hardwood.

When third down rolled around, the Bruins simply looked for the guy a head above everyone else, hitting their tallest player for gains of 21, 26 and 29 yards to keep the chains moving. On one touchdown drive, Fauria accounted for 56 of 80 yards and capped it with the score, a five-yard catch from Richard Brehaut.

The end results: six receptions – one for a touchdown – and 110 receiving yards, the most by a Bruin tight end since Marcedes Lewis, named the nation’s top tight end in 2005 and now a Pro Bowler in the NFL.

His coach wasn’t surprised.

“He’s got such great length and range, he’s tough to cover,” coach Rick Neuheisel said after the game. “We anticipated what we saw on the field with Joe.”

Fauria then went out and matched his touchdown count from a year ago with a 14-yard score against San Jose State – on a third down, once again.

The pain of having to watch from the sidelines is gone, and so too is the pain from Fauria’s injured groin. Well, almost. The injury cost him the beginning of last season’s fall camp, which killed any momentum he had gained from a standout spring, and lingered during the season, destroying his chances of seeing the field.

Now, after an offseason spent responsibly taking care of the groin, it’s still in the back of his mind, but he’s nursed it back to the point where he can see playing time before the proverbial scraps are on the field.

UCLA’s ever-developing aerial attack sure could use a healthy Fauria. He’s the biggest target any quarterback could ever want, and it’s easy to get him the ball.

“If you throw it above my head, I’m going to jump for it, and no one else is going to get it besides me,” he said firmly.

If it keeps up, Fauria will have turned one season’s trash into another season’s treasure.

UCLA FOOTBALL

UCLA's Datone Jones smiles through the bad times

Defensive end learned to navigate around money and school struggles, a tough neighborhood and long bus commutes. A top NFL prospect, he stays upbeat despite team's and his own on-field woes.

October 04, 2011 | By Chris Foster

Datone Jones arose at 5:30 each morning and within minutes was headed for the bus stop.

Breakfast was served at the corner. A merchant would wrap up a doughnut and hand it to him in stride.

Compton High was one hour, with one transfer, away.

In the evening, after football practice, Jones made the trip in reverse, doing school work on the bus, dozing off, or just watching the neighborhoods drift by.

"I got to know all the drivers' names," he recalled.

Jones now starts at defensive end for UCLA, and he is probably among the Bruins' very best NFL prospects. But back then he just wanted to attend school with his friends.

Riding the bus was the sacrifice he made after his mother moved the family to a better apartment in Los Angeles. It's just one example of how his journey to big-time college football was different than most.

Jones is 6 feet 5 inches, 275 pounds, so it's hard to image him struggling physically. But he was born three months premature — three months after his mother lost his twin brother.

He also faced plenty of challenges growing up in a tough neighborhood. People he knew chose drugs and gangs, but he somehow managed to avoid both.

"Guys who I played street football with were in the same situation," Jones says. "I'd see them get involved in the street, selling drugs. I would think, 'Do you really need that money?' My mom taught me, 'If you want a nice car, work for it.' "

School didn't come easy, either — he barely qualified to attend UCLA — yet he is on track to graduate from college in four years.

"He's a fighter," says Jones' mother, Shondra Hall. "I have one brother who is in a penitentiary for 26 years and another who has been in one for 21 years. I could turn on my television and see my son there for doing something he shouldn't have been doing.

"Instead, I turn on my television and see him run on to the field. It makes me want to cry. I am so proud of him."

The sentiment is mutual. Jones says his mother has battled illness and has been on disability since he was a child.

"My mom raised us to the best of her abilities," he says. But money was so tight, "from the 15th to the 30th [each month], we were living on whatever we could get."

Jones became resourceful when it came to solving money problems. The way he covered the cost of that bus pass that allowed him to continue school at Compton was one example.

"He came home and said, 'The bus pass is $19,' " Hall says. "I could pay for half. He got the rest."

Jones made a little money by helping around school. Teachers and staff paid him for odd jobs, sometimes with cash, sometimes with a burrito.

"If I was getting the kids shoes and was short on money, Datone would say, 'Mom, I don't need any,' " Hall recalls.

She remembers the day Jones left for UCLA. When she went into his room, she found him asleep on the floor. Around him were trash bags, in which he had stuffed all his possessions. "He had been doing laundry all night," Hall says. "Some of the clothes were still wet. I went out and got him storage bins so he didn't have to take his things to school in trash bags."

Jones had five siblings, but lost an older sister to a lung illness when he was 11. His father was out of the picture. "Every day I breathe, I think about family," he says.

Jones talks about his upbringing and a question becomes obvious about a young man who is almost always smiling, on and off the field.

How does he stay so upbeat?

Sure, he has much to be thankful for — a free college education, enough food to eat, and all the resources available to a top athlete playing at the highest level of college competition. But there are also these facts: UCLA is not playing particularly well, and neither is he.

Jones had four sacks and 11 tackles for losses two years ago as a sophomore. A broken foot sidelined him last season, but he came back and was so dominant during training camp that coaches took to pulling him off the field at times so the offense could get work done without disruption.

Yet, Jones hasn't been much of a force this season and is without a tackle in the last two games.

"A lot of times he is taking himself out of plays trying to do someone else's job," defensive line coach Inoke Breckterfield say.

Jones, smiling, explains: "All I can do is to make up for it in the next game. I have been through tough times. I have never doubted myself.

"There are a lot of games left."

Back in the neighborhood, people know his resolve, remember his commitment, and wish him all the best.

"He comes home and the neighbors all hug him and want to know how he's doing," Hall says. "The mailman asks about him. The man on the corner who gave him a doughnut every morning, said, 'Tell Datone to bring me a picture.'"
